

Amanda Freedle
Deputy Comptroller and Chief Accountant

Amanda Freedle is the Deputy Comptroller and Chief Accountant for the Office of the Chief Accountant at the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency (OCC).

In this role, Ms. Freedle serves as the OCC's authoritative source on bank accounting and financial reporting and provides accounting counsel to examiners, the banking industry, and the accounting profession. She assumed this role in March 2022.

Prior to this role, Ms. Freedle held the position of Deputy Chief Accountant, serving as a key advisor to the Acting Deputy Comptroller and Chief Accountant.

Ms. Freedle has also served as a Senior Accounting Policy Advisor providing accounting support for large bank examination teams and leading various policy initiatives. Before joining the OCC, she worked in various financial services positions and as an external auditor.

Ms. Freedle is a Certified Public Accountant with an undergraduate degree in business from Wake Forest University and a master's degree in accounting from North Carolina State University. She is also a member of the American Institute of Certified Public Accountants.