

RESCINDED

Office of Thrift Supervision

Department of the Treasury Managing Director, Examinations, Supervision, and Consumer Protection

1700 G Street, N.W., Washington, DC 20552 • (202) 906-7984

Any attachments to this document are rescinded only as they relate to national banks and federal savings associations.

September 15, 2004

MEMORANDUM FOR: CHIEF EXECUTIVE OFFICERS

FROM: Scott M. Albinson

SUBJECT: Advisory on Hurricane Ivan

PURPOSE

Federal thrifts are not subject to a statutory restriction requiring a declaration by the Office of Thrift Supervision (OTS) in order for institutions to close their offices in the event of a natural disaster or other emergency. OTS, however, does receive frequent inquiries about whether the agency will make a pronouncement permitting federal thrifts to close their offices.

OTS regulated thrift institutions have discretion to make individual decisions whether to maintain or close business operations in the event of a natural disaster or other community emergency, including situations where an emergency is imminent. This is often a difficult decision in which the interests of employee and customer safety must be weighed against the needs and interests of customers in having access to their deposit funds in anticipation of, or following, a natural disaster or other emergency situation.

Today's guidance, issued in anticipation of the imminent impact of Hurricane Ivan, highlights the competing interests that must be weighed in making a decision to close your offices. In addition, this guidance reminds you of OTS's disaster relief guidelines set forth in OTS Thrift Bulletin (TB) 71.

PRE-DISASTER PLANNING AND OPERATIONS CONTINUITY

If your institution is in the path of Hurricane Ivan, you should exercise the utmost care and caution to protect the personal safety of employees while continuing to assist customers in need. You should consider all reasonable steps available to maintain operations for as long as prudently possible to address customers' cash and financial needs in connection with hurricane preparations and evacuation procedures.

In particular, you should continue to maintain and service ATM facilities and other cash disbursement operations, as well as any other operations essential to evacuation and hurricane preparedness for as long as possible prior to the impact of Hurricane Ivan. Under no circumstances, however, should the personal safety of your employees or customers be compromised to maintain operations. In this regard, OTS will work with you to maintain operations prior to the hurricane as well as to help restore operations and continuity after Hurricane Ivan.

While it may be difficult to assess the potential impact of Hurricane Ivan, effective communication will allay customer fears and concerns while also protecting the personal safety of employees and customers. If your institution is affected, OTS will assist you to ensure an effective communication and business continuity strategy.

Finally, you are reminded about steps you may take to assist affected customers in areas that experience the effects of Hurricane Ivan. In particular, OTS examiners will give due consideration to modifications to existing loans in areas impacted by the damage from Hurricane Ivan.

OTS also encourages all thrifts operating in or extending services near areas affected by the hurricane to work with customers and affected communities by considering:

- Temporarily waiving late payment charges and early withdrawal of savings penalties;
- Offering prudent loans to help rebuild damaged property after assessing the current community credit needs;
- Expediting lending decisions when possible, consistent with safety and soundness principles;
- Restructuring borrowers' debt obligations, where appropriate, by altering or adjusting payment terms;
- State and federal guarantees and other means to help mitigate excessive credit risks; and
- All available programs offered by the Federal Home Loan Banks.

To facilitate rebuilding efforts in the areas affected by the hurricane, while maintaining standards of safety and soundness, OTS will:

- Consider granting emergency exceptions to applicable appraisal standards;
- Take into account an institution's disaster relief efforts when evaluating the institution's CRA performance;
- Grant extensions of time for submission of regulatory filing requirements;

- Work with institutions that experience sudden growth due to temporary deposits of insurance proceeds;
- Allow reasonable loan documentation deficiencies necessitated by thrift office relocation or personnel shortages during the period of recovery efforts;
- Temporarily waive the Qualified Thrift Lender requirements for institutions meeting their capital requirements in order to help rebuild businesses; and
- Accelerate procedures to approve temporary facilities so that thrifts with destroyed or severely damaged facilities will be able to continue to serve their customers and communities.

OTS believes that these measures will help thrifts affected by the hurricane to recover their financial strength and place them in a better position to meet their financial obligations. These efforts will help to revitalize affected communities and ensure the continued stability of thrift institutions involved in the recovery of areas affected by the hurricane. Additional information on OTS disaster relief guidelines is in TR 7/1, which is available at the OTS web site at www.ots.treas.gov/docs/8/84058.pdf.

Thrifts requiring assistance in dealing with customers in areas affected by hurricanes Ivan, Frances or Charley should contact their regional OTS office. At the OTS Southeast Regional Office, in Atlanta, Georgia, thrifts can contact Art Goodhand, at 404-888-8500, and at the OTS Midwest Regional Office, in Dallas, Texas, thrifts can contact Duane J. Andersen at 972-277-9539.